We have appeared before a wide variety of administrative tribunals spanning many sectors and contexts. We have also appeared before all levels of Court in Alberta and the Supreme Court of Canada.

Governments delegate the authority to administer programs, rules, and processes to a number of departments, agencies, boards, commissions, and other bodies. Administrative Law is the system of legal principles that apply when these public authorities exercise their power.

Working with all parties

We represent parties in administrative proceedings. This includes both individuals or organizations who are subject to administrative decisions, as well as the public authorities who make those decisions.

However, we also act as independent legal counsel for appeal bodies and tribunals – the adjudicators who preside and decide on a matter when a dispute arises. When we act for these adjudicators, we help them understand their responsibilities so that they are able to discharge their duties in a way that is legally sound.

Leaders in education

Our experience makes us leaders in Administrative Law education. We provide full-spectrum training to decision-makers on administrative law, on a number of topics:

- The foundations of Administrative Law
- Understanding governing legislation and the authority it grants
- The principles of natural justice and procedural fairness
- Conducting a fair hearing, including rules related to evidence and witnesses
- Effective decision-making and deliberating;
- Preparing a written decision; and
- Understanding processes of appeal, including appeals to the Courts and other review bodies, as well as judicial reviews by the Courts.

We offer comprehensive online Webinars designed to help tribunal members understand their roles and discharge their duties in a way that is legally sound. Learn more here.

Members of our team also teach Administrative Law at the post-secondary level and teach on behalf of the Foundation of Administrative Justice, a non-profit organization that provides board member training.
