Jenna is an associate lawyer whose growing civil litigation practice includes construction law, employment law, municipal law and administrative law.

Jenna's legal career truly did "start in the mailroom". After three summers working in the mailroom of a law firm, Jenna applied for law school.

During law school, Jenna contributed a number of articles to the Canons of Construction student newspaper, was placed on the Dean's List in 2019 and graduated with Distinction.

Jenna joined Reynolds Mirth as an Articling Student in 2019. Since being admitted to the Alberta Bar in 2020, she has developed a general civil litigation practice, with a particular focus on construction litigation, employment law and municipal law.

Her clients include contractors, subcontractors, owners, public bodies, municipalities, employers and employees. Jenna's practice includes disputes arising from construction contracts, delay claims, builders' liens and other project-related disputes. Jenna also assists both employers and employees navigate disputes, including wrongful termination claims.

In her free time, Jenna enjoys watching classic films, spending time outside and testing new local bakeries.
